Abstract (13sep96): The main topic for the fall will be the differential geometry of curves in $\mathbf{R}^n$. This field has been vitalized by current research in biochemistry that involves the differential geometry of the DNA-molecule. In this lecture I survey some classical results like the Hopf Umlaufsatz, the Whitney-Graustein theorem and the Gauss-Bonnet theorem.